Background:

The City of Great Falls adopted the International Property Maintenance Code 2009 Edition (IPMC) on March 1, 2011. This adoption was codified as OCCGF 15.5.010. At this time, the City Manager, Planning and Community Development Director, and City Attorney wish to create a Title 16 of the OCCGF in order to separate property maintenance provisions from the Title where the building codes are referenced. While it is published as part of the City’s building code, the IPMC is neither considered nor used as a building code or regulation.

The City's adoption of the IPMC was not intended to regulate the design, construction, reconstruction, alteration, conversion, repair, inspection, or use of buildings and installation of equipment in buildings. It was adopted into the City Code to supplement enforcement of the City's municipal codes regarding proper property maintenance. However, because the IPMC was adopted as a subsection of the Building Codes title of the OCCGF, there has been some confusion as to its application as a building, versus a maintenance, code. Because the IPMC is not used to regulate building design or construction, it should be relocated within the municipal code and be given its own title, separate from the building code. There is currently no Title 16 in the OCCGF, so creating a Title 16 to reference a City property maintenance code separately, would be appropriate to eliminate any confusion that it is distinct from the City Building Codes.

Adoption of the IPMC is within the City's general zoning powers under MCA §76-2-301 and within the City's self-governing powers under MCA §7-1-101. Cities can adopt uniform codes by reference under MCA §§7-5-108 and 7-5-4202. This uniform code adoption process is not limited to building codes and includes many uniform codes, such as energy conservation, fuel gas, and fire codes, which Great Falls has adopted in whole or in part.

The current enforcement process for violations of the IPMC consists of complaints filed into the Great Falls Municipal Court, which can result in misdemeanor convictions under OCCGF 1.4.070. Additionally, staff is considering developing new enforcement policies for property maintenance code violations via alternative civil remedies.

Alternatives:

1. The Commission could maintain the current version of OCCGF with the IPMC adopted into Title 15 Chapter 5. However, staff does not recommend this alternative; and
2. The Commission could suggest revisions to the proposed code revision, which would be considered for input.
